Dear Andrew,

RE: Marsh - District Court Appeal No. App 1 of 2017

Another thing has occurred to me. We don't actually know the Registrar's reasons for the decision of 24 May 2018.

It appears there was no transcript and no written reasons were given. Generally a failure to give reasons or adequate reasons can mean the decision is set aside.

However an appeal Court may say that the reasons were obvious – you didn't appear on 24 May 2018 which leads back to the first argument.

You may want to reconsider your appeal grounds to include "no reasons for decisions" were given XU v Griffiths 91SR(WA)p/65.

Regards,
